told under oath for whom they voted.
Judge Witt announced yesterday that at the suggestion of the Jury he would lesue a rule for a "certain person" for interfering with witnesses called by the Jury. The name is withheld.

Twenty-five or more witnesses will be subpoensed to-day. Among them is Chairman James B. Doherty, of the City Democratic Committee. The others are said to be members of the committee, influential ward workers, candidates and election officers.

Just what precine will be under the searchlight to-day is not announced. The trunk containing the ballots cast was asked for by the Jury, and will be on hand when to-day's session begins. Evidently the Jury is going to count and compare the result of the count in each precinct with the poil just made. This will indicate where fraud has been committed, if it has been perpetrated at all.

milted, if it has been perpetrated at all.

The Hustings Court grand jury engaged in investigating the recent primary election yesterday completed the work of polling the vote of the twenty-three precincts of the city. Two sessions were held, occupying in all about five and a half hours. During this time something like six hundred voters were polled as to their votes for city sergeant and Commonwealth's attorney. Those polled yesterday were from First Clay and Second Monree, with 150 or more from various precincts throughout the city.

When the jury returned to the court-room for the lunch recess yesturday Judge Witt said to them in substance: "Gentlemen, regarding a certain mater about wich you inquired Saturday, I will state that I shall issue a rule against the person mentioned requiring him to appear to-morrow and show cause why he should not be fined for contempt of court for interfering with voters testifying before you."

court for interfering with voters testifying before you."
This direct statement explained the mysterious paper handed to the judge by Jury Foreman Taylor Saturday, and as to which there was so much speculation. It appears that the jury had informed the court that certain witnesses had been approached by another person and coached as to how they voted. This man will be summoned by rule to appear and explain why and under what circumstances he interfered with the witnesses testifying or summoned to testify.

Ask for the Trunk.

Ask for the Trunk. Ask for the Trunk.

When the jury filed into the courtroom yesterday and reported to the courtas usual prior to adjournment, it was made clear that the poll of voters of the various wards and precincts had been completed as far as it is deemed practicable to carry it. Foreman Charles F.
Taylor said to the court: "We will ask to be reconvered at 10:30 to-morrow morning, and if your Honor please, we would like to have our trunk, the trunk containing the bailots." Commonwealth'sAttorney. Richardson assured the jury that their request would be given attention and that it would be on hand early to-day.

It is said to be likely also that certain newspaper men may be summoned to testify from whom they received certain information which was made the basis for reports or guesses as to various phases of the poll being made. Indeed, some predict that a number of newspaper men may be summoned to give special testimony in order that the jury may get the benefit of the valuable information vouchsafed by certain voters to the reporters, but not to the jury.

Just what the inquiry has developed, no one but the jury and other sworn officers of the court knows, and they daro not tell lest their own plans be defeated With the poil of the voters fairly complete, the jury is now prepared to fairly begin its probins. Since then he has been at work day and night, as long as he could work without breaking himself down, endeavoring to transcribe his stenographic notes and make them intelligible to the jury. Naturally he has not completed this work, since additional witnesses by himdreds were testifying yesterday up to 6:30 P. M. Crop of Wild Rumors.

There is a crop of wild and, so fa

There is a crop of wild and, so far as can be ascertained, utterly unfounded rumors affoat of fraud in every precinct, and thesp is a foad, of unwarranted talk about "fotteness is every precinct," But when the purveyers of these rumors are asked the course of their information they have to admit that it is a mere suspicion, having little basis, other than their own imaginings, or where the wish fathets the though. Some even assert that the deputies are only summoning those who voted for one of the candidates for one of the offices being investigated, but when informed that the deputies walked the streets of the precinct and summoned every voter at each residence on the street, the man in question stated that "that was what he had heard charged, nevertheless."

Indeed, all the reports affort yesterday were of the vague, intangible variety, which could neither be confirmed nor corroborated by further inquiry. The report as to alleged fraud in second Lee is the only definite one to which much publicity has been given. No specific prophecies of fraud being shown have been given wide currency, other than then one case mentioned. So far as can be verified, that case is merely a suspicion of a partisan of one of the candidates.

An interesting question has been raised in connection with the publicity law to reports and speculation as to the jury's doings or findings. That question is whether or not the courts can require a newspaper to tell the source of its information or the reporter to tell his. Some contend that the highest courtis have held that this is a privileged communication, and that a reporter cannot be required to tell. Be that as it may, the informant has no such technical defense, and most of those having "inside information," or professing to have, are exceedingly wary about talking to reporters. The reporters themselves are not desirous of making a test of the powers and jurisdiction of the courts in the premises.

First Clay Testifies.

First Clay Testifies.

First Clay Testifies.

When the court convened yesterday Judge Witt and the jurors were promptly in place and a great cloud of witnesses swarmed into the big granite building and converged upon the doors to the Hustings Court room on the second floor. Here they were ushered in with as much order and expedition as practicable, and were sworn in bunches without delay or intermission. As fast as they were sworn the voters filed out and lengthened the line that stretched all around the corridor of the hall. Meanwhile the jury and the stenographer were ready to work. Sergeant Wron, who had the direction of the voters, and who acts as a sort of doorkeeper to the jury-room, was in his place, and Sergeant Gibson was at the exit door. Several other police officers were stationed at advantageous points, and assisted in the orderly and expeditious direction of the inquiry from their view points outside.

When the jury began polling the line moved up rapidly, about four or more to the minute giving their testimony and retiring. The voters polled yesterday at the first session were chiefly from the first precinct of Clay Ward, where nearly 500 votes were cast. Most of them were very intelligent men, and as they knew beforehand just what the jury desired to know they lost no time stating. Sometimes the intervals between the exit of deponents was not more than ten or twelve seconds, but occasionally one consumed fifteen or eighteen or even twenty seconds. Besides First Clay many from Second Monroe appeared in response to general summons and testified. It is estimated that in all fully five hundred testified before the unch recess and in the two and a half hours' sitting in the afternoon 160 or all fully five hundred tostified before the lunch recess, and in the two and a half hours' sitting in the afternoon 150 or more persons from various precincts appeared and testified.

The only witness who testified other the voters being polled was Deputy Treasurer issae Held, who spent ten or fifteen minutes in the jury-room just before 5 P. M. A few late voters appeared and were disposed of after that time, but special summons.

Some Who Tesified.

Among those who testified yasterday were ex-Mayor Richard M. Taylor, Mr. Alfred B. Williams, editor of the New-Leader; Mr. H. Claiborne Epps, candidate for City Sergeant in the recent primary, and at whose instigation the investigation now in progress is said to have been instituted; and Mr. Clyde W. Saunders, a member of the State Datecratic Committee, and a potential agure in Chyward politics.

APPENDICITIS DUE TO RUBBER RINGS

Dr. Pond, An English Surgeon, Attributes the Disease to

Antimony Therein. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.) WASHINGTON, D. C., August 7 .- An-

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 7,—Another theory has been advanced regarding the cause of appendicitis. Dr. Pond, of Liverpool, publishes in the London Lancet a new theory with reference to the origin of appendicitis and other disturbances of the digestive organs. He calls attention to the fact that such aliments often can be attributed to antimental poisoning, and be atributed to antimonial poisoning, and the source of the antimony taken by man is said to be the rubber rings frequently used to close all sorts of bottles.

Dr. Pond has established the fact that such rings consist of almost one-third their weight of antimony. Not only is the antimony dissolved by the mineral waters containing alkalis and organic acid, but these rubber rings, as daily ob-white's characteristics and the provided by the reports of the compound falls into the contents of the bottles.

In a series of observations Dr Pond claims to have found that a frequently repeated introduction of antimony can become the source, especially through continued weakening of the muscles of the stomach and intestines. Scientists have taken up the matter of antimony in rubber rings, and if Dr., Pond's conclusions in that regard are proved his deductions concerning the effect of antimony on the digestive system may be suported by the reports of other investigators.
